DETAILED ACTION

Examiner acknowledges the reply filed June 26, 2008.

Election/Restrictions

Claim 52 – 54 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on June 26, 2008.

Note to Applicant Regarding Claim Interpretation

The term “operable to” in the claim(s) may be interpreted as intended use. Intended use/functional language does not require that reference specifically teach the intended use of the element. A recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 30 – 51, 55, and 56 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Alyfuku et al. U.S. Patent No. 5,410,471.

Alyfuku discloses a networked vital information monitoring system which is capable of detecting and measuring vital signs during the course of day-to-day living activities of individuals without causing the individuals to realize measurement, thereby to provide a reliable vital information (Column 3 lines 21 – 68, column 4 lines 1 – 55);

networked in form of the so-called "centralized" communications network configuration so that the vital information obtained by respective testing and measuring instruments in the network is transmitted via a data communication medium arranged in the building to a data controller which is adapted to store in a data storage memory thereof the vital information for centralized storage and control of the vital information. The vital information once stored in the controller memory is furnished upon request to the testing and measuring instruments as well as to control devices associated with any of the household appliances in the network to enable the instruments and devices to perform their intended function (Column 4 lines 60 - 68, column 5 lines 1 - 8); the toilet system is also provided with functions of electrocardiography, sphygmomanometry and pulse rate measurement; the system also comprises central monitoring computers and equipment that collects and stores data from measurement devices (Figure 4).

Claims 31 – 43, 45, 47, and 49 – 51 are rejected by Alyfuku et al. column 3 lines 21 – 68, column 4 lines 1 – 55, column 4 lines 60 – 68, column 5 lines 1 – 8, and figure 4.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed March 12, 2008 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant contends that the applied prior art fails to disclose the elements embodied in the claims. The Examiner respectfully disagrees. As noted above, the claims contain functional language, which is given limited patentable weight. As such, the structure of the applied prior art is capable of performing the functions claimed, and therefore is sufficient to reject the claims as presented

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
